The Dragons raised her to be a cold hearted killer, and they got what they deserved.

The FBI says they are helping her, but Tori can feel the scheme behind their lies...

Tori Farrell is on a mission to find her true identity, to break the ties to a dark underworld for good, and to save the people she cares about most - the family she has never known.

She wants a new life, but first she must lay to rest the demons of her past.

Book Passage:

Eddie had brought her here once before, when they had come into town and realized they needed some supplies to complete a job. The group who took refuge in this gutted building is made up of nasty people, but they had connections, and had come through easily when the Dragons had been in a bind. Standing in front of door 317, she tapped lightly, causing it to swing open, so she stepped inside calling out if anyone were home.

In an instant, a shotgun was shoved in her face, the young black man holding it trembling from the adrenaline as he demanded she identify herself. Tori didn't flinch, responding calmly, "Tori Farrell, Eddie Farrell's girl." In response, the young man pulled his weapon, and said, "You here alone?" Without batting an eyelash, Tori replied, "Yep. We have a problem and I need your help."
